DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 9-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Aoki (6,201,773).

Aoki discloses the invention as claimed. Aoki discloses a method for recording information on an optical disc with wobbled tracks with the following technical features (please refer to column 5, line 64 to column 6, line 11 of the specification and Figure 1 of the reference document 1): grooves which become tracks are wobbled in correspondence to the address information, the wobbling corresponds to the phase modulated wobble signal containing the address information (analogous to the technical feature of "physical address information is recorded by modulating groove wobbles"); one bit of the address information corresponds to two cycles of the wobble signal (analogous to the technical feature of "address information is formed by M wobbles per bit as a basic unit"); a "0/1" value of the address information corresponds 0/180 degree phase shift of the wobble signal (analogous to the technical feature of "the address information is NRZ-recorded"). It can be seen that all the technical features of claims 1 and 9-12 have been disclosed by Aoki, and they belong to the technical field of recording information on an optical disc and solve the same technical problem, i.e. forming address information by wobbled signal. See also Figs. 1-12, and the description of the figures for further detail relating to the limitations as set forth in the claims.

Art Unit: 2627

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-8 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The prior art of record alone or in combination does not teach or suggest the optical disc of claim 1 having the further limitations as set forth in claims 2-8. For example the prior art does not teach the sync signal used in sync detection of the address information is formed by N wobbles per bit as a basic unit, and the sync signal with that configuration is recorded on the head side of the address information, where integer N is the number of wobble waves and $M=2N$, as set forth in claims 2-8.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Furumiya et al. (2004/0105365), discloses an optical disk apparatus having an optical disk having wobbled grooves.
